NOTE TO CONDUCTOR

Written to capture the feeling of stately British band music, DEDICATA should be performed with all of the eloquence this style of music demands. Throughout the composition, melodies should be smooth and flowing, countermelodies well balanced, and accompaniment figures played in a marcato style. The opening canon should be performed, if possible, with the original instrumentation. Regardless of instrumentation, never double any of the soli instruments with the cued instrument. The Allegro at measure 25 should be played no faster than the MM marking of 100. The Horn and Alto Saxophone countermelody at measure 36 (and again at 44 in the Horn alone) should be brought out, but never overpowering. If possible, stagger the players on the Flute, Piccolo, and Bassoon ostinato part at measure 56. The opening section should begin to retard and diminish beginning in measure 79 and culminate with the Timpani solo in measures 81 and 82.

The Baritone Solo at measure 83 should be rubato — the tempo solidifying with the pickup notes at 84. The middle section, beginning at 96 should be played legato — to the point of no separation between notes in the accompaniment. Measure 114 brings together two of the three themes used in the composition. Both parts, Horn/Alto Saxophone and Trumpet/Flute, should be emphasized.

The final section of the composition, a fugue, begins at 133 and should be the fastest tempo yet. The rallentando at 158 should be very broad and dramatic, leading to the original theme and finale of the piece. Do not let the tempo slow past the MM of 90 from this point to the end.

Good luck with your preparation. I hope you enjoy performing DEDICATA.
